Meryanne Loum-Martin's Marrakech Edit

For more than 30 years, Meryanne Loum-Martin has helped make Marrakech a destination for design lovers. Her first trip to Morocco inspired her passion for interior design, and in 1985 she moved from Paris to Marrakech and is credited with ushering in the transformation of riad-style guesthouses in Marrakech in the late 1980s, after turning a family retreat into a villa-style hotel (the first of its kind). Her current hotel, Jnane Tamsna, located in the Palmeraie area of the city, showcases her sophisticated eye for design and combines traditional Moroccan splendor with contemporary flair. It is also home to her boutique, one of the best in the city, with many of its offerings being products she has designed and commissioned.

Now, the Parisian lawyer-turned-hotelier has written a book that chronicles her 35-year immersion in Marrakech's architecture, design and style. Inside Marrakesh covers 30 homes, plus some gardens and hotels, and is an informed look at Marrakech past and present by a true insider. Born in Ivory Coast to a Senegalese father and West Indian mother, and raised in Ghana, Moscow and London, thanks to her father's diplomatic posts as ambassador, Meryanne is a woman of the world with an unerring eye for color, materials, objects—and in our session she'll show us her world and discuss how she and other designers have created extraordinary and inspiring homes in Marrakech.

For this virtual souk experience, and in the spirit of Meryanne's new book, Inside Marrakesh, she has curated items from the best artisans and designers of Morocco for the Indagare community. In her book, Meryanne celebrates the diversity of the creatives living in and inspired by Marrakech and she hopes that the souk reflects the constant source of inspiration that Marrakech is for residents and locals. Three designers are featured in the souk - Robert Merloz, Jewels Jewelry and Marisa Berenson. Beyond the designers, there will be a curation of paintings, pottery, textiles, pillows, Limoges China and other objects that define Meryanne's "Marrakech."

Robert Merloz

After having worked for eight years at Yves Saint-Laurent, before opening his own boutique in Paris, Robert went on to explore Brazil and Madagascar and he ultimately settled in Marrakech. Inspired by the diversity of local craftsmanship and traditional knowledge, architecture and interior design, as well as popular culture, Robert designs collections of bags and fashion accessories. Robert paints on leather, strass and nails. Embroidery on leather is the elegant signature of the unique pieces shown here. All pieces are one-of-a-kind and will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

Jewels Jewelry

Jewels is an American who was born in Tripoli, lived and traveled in India, Thailand, and Burm. She now calls Marrakech home. Her quest of old pieces from ancient coins, to elements of culture seen through adornment, women's valuables to be turned into necklaces, make her work as much the work of an ethnographer as it is of a jewelry designer. Jewel's work is for people who love wearing a "story" around their neck composed of antique pieces, put together by a labor of love and archival quest. All pieces are one-of-a-kind and will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

Marisa Berenson

*Former top-model, Marisa brought her timeless elegance and beauty to the iconic Barry Lyndon. When she is not flying abroad to be part of a film, she calls Marrakech home. The grand-daughter of the quintessentially elegant couture designer, Elsa Schiaparelli, Marisa creates bohemian necklaces, mixing beads that she has collected through her personal travels on her constant quest of things beautiful. Detour Palms • Charcoal & Pigments

155 cm x 125 cm

Piece by Philippe Deltour, a Belgian painter born in 1955, who is famous for very large canvas and fresco size works. He shares his life between Morocco and the French countryside. His signature is painting on Kraft paper, which is backed by canvas. He is a master of charcoal and he focuses on trees as his subjects after spending decades focusing on people.

G2 • $4,200

Moroccan Countryside • On canvas - Backdrop with Acrylic; Pastels and Gold Leaf

2m x 90cm

Piece by Florence Teilhet, a painter born in Morocco. Florence has travelled and lived around the world, but now again calls Morocco home. She expresses her love of colors in her paintings, and her passion for textiles in the way her paintings always have a sense of layers. In the very large and narrow paintings of the Marrakech countryside on the way to Essaouira, there is always an element of a different layer. For example, a house is made of gold leaf.
